PROTECTING DELAWAREANS

The Attorney General's Medicaid Fraud Control Unit investigates and prosecutes patient abuse, neglect, and exploitation.

The Medicaid Fraud Control Unit protects Delaware residents and the taxpayers who fund the program. Its professional staff of prosecutors, investigators, and auditors review a wide range of allegations, including:

1. Criminal and/or civil fraud by healthcare providers who provide services to Medicaid recipients;
2. Criminal abuse or neglect of patients in residential healthcare facilities, including nursing homes, hospitals, group homes, and mental health facilities; and
3. Theft or misuse of funds belonging to patients in residential healthcare facilities.

PATIENT ABUSE AND NEGLECT

Patients residing in healthcare facilities (including nursing homes and mental health facilities) and state-licensed group homes, have special protection under Delaware law. Because they are often completely dependent upon the facilities that are providing them care, these patients are particularly vulnerable to abuse, neglect, and exploitation.

Under Delaware law, patient abuse, neglect, and exploitation includes physical, sexual, emotional, or financial crimes committed against a patient. Certain behavior may rise to the level of emotional abuse even without physical contact. Criminal neglect may occur when a caregiver fails to provide treatment or care that is necessary to maintain the health or safety of the patient.

Delaware law provides enhanced penalties for crimes against infirm victims.

HOW CAN I STOP ABUSE AND NEGLECT?

Abused or neglected patients are often totally dependent on the offender and are afraid to report being abused for fear of reprisal. It is especially important that others watch for warning signs, such as:

- lack of personal cleanliness
- bedsores and skin lesions
- unexplained injuries or complaints of pain without obvious injury
- bruises or burns suggesting the use of instruments, cigarettes, etc.
- lack of reaction to pain
- fear of being alone with caregivers
- sexually transmitted diseases
- malnutrition
